Cristóbal Rodríguez

Front End Developer & Psychologist

SUMMARY

Hello, my name is Cristóbal Rodríguez.

Blending my academic background as a psychologist with my studies in Front End Development (and on my way to become a full stack dev soon!). I prefer novel and experimental approaches to solving problems -having an understanding of the nature and interdependencies of contexts and situations. Indeed, I have been sprouting a relentless focus on self-development -undergoing the path to becoming my highest self and personifying a unique profile to projects and ventures.

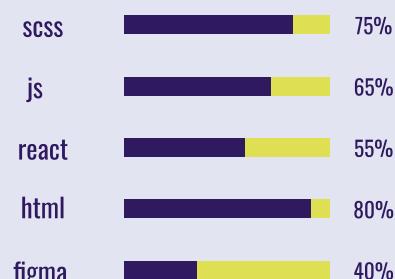

So for the usual question of

Why should you hire me?

You should hire me for my passion and adoption of accountability as my belief system -transforming work into an outward expression of my unique skills, talents and experiences. I relentlessly emphasise the importance of reaching agreements and the benefits of involving others to improve work quality.

I am excited to contribute to multidisciplinary and multicultural teams, developing innovative projects that reflect nuances of my personality and knowledge.
